>Welcome from our Chairman

Seventy-five years ago, twelve people gathered in the Mayor of Claremont's office to hear Mrs. Frances Eleanor Smith explain a pressing need of hundreds of children who, thanks to the invention of the iron lung, had survived polio but had no way of preparing for the rest of their lives. The solution was clear:

organize a facility where these children could rehabilitate their bodies and spirits using the most advanced techniques. Out of that meeting and that need, Casa Colina was born and local people rallied to its support.

Today, Casa Colina has grown to serve more than 10,500 adults and children every year with a wide variety of medical conditions and disabilities. A volunteer board still governs Casa Colina and we are still supported by community members, people like you, who understand the profound value that rehabilitation can have. I would like to thank my fellow board members for the energy and insight that they bring to their participation and their unwavering commitment to making Casa Colina a center of excellence in rehabilitation and medical care.

On behalf of the Board, I would like to thank the staff of Casa Colina for what they do every day. The healing and progress that they bring to individual patients are the reasons why we on the Board remain committed and why Casa Colina deserves your support. The work that they accomplish together, as a team, is what makes Casa Colina a center of excellence and points out to us what lies ahead – how we can continue to improve rehabilitation and medical care.

We welcome Captain Mark Kelly and Katherine and Jay Wolf to Casa Colina's Tribute to Courage. We are honored that they are sharing their stories with us and hope, with that sharing, we can better understand what we must be as an organization as we move forward.

Steve Norin
Chairman of the Board of Directors, Casa Colina Inc. and Affiliates

Message from our CEO

It is with great pleasure that I welcome you to Casa Colina's Tribute to Courage. This year we will honor Katherine and Jay Wolf, who have been challenged by a primary question in rehabilitation: what happens when an injured person comes home to the family? How can families rebuild their lives together?

Tonight, we will also learn about this critical process from another viewpoint, that of Captain Mark Kelly. He was the Commander of the Space Shuttle Endeavour on its last flight and is also the husband of former US Congresswoman, Gabrielle Giffords. He will share his experiences both as a pilot and an astronaut, and as a husband and a caregiver, witnessing the courage and determination of his wife as she fights her way back to reclaiming her life.

These are incredible stories of courage and perseverance that have a parallel in the story of Casa Colina itself. We have come a long way in our history as a rehabilitation provider, from treating twenty children recovering from polio to what you see today: 22,000 patient days of care in the hospital annually; 110,000 outpatient visits overall; more than 200 physicians on staff; and nearly 700 employees. As we take our place on the national stage of rehabilitation providers, we embark on yet another redefinition and crossroads for Casa Colina within a health care industry that faces so many challenges for providers and patients trying to access the most appropriate level of care.

In order to meet those challenges, we are beginning another major expansion - adding 31 beds to our hospital and a medical office building. This will expand our continuum of care and give patients and physicians rapid access to a wealth of diagnostic and therapeutic options. These strategic expansions will safeguard our ability to remain viable, whatever changes may come.

But our first focus is, of course, the individual patient sitting knee to knee with each clinician every day. When patients come to Casa Colina their need is immediate, but the resources to pay are not always available. This Tribute to Courage helps maintain our free care fund which is frequently used to extend a patient's care so his or her potential can truly be reached, and to supplement unreimbursed services, such as on-site housing for families under special critical circumstances. This attention to the individual needs of patients and their families provides the extra element of care that makes real the "opportunity to achieve maximum potential," which defines our mission.

Felice L. Loverso, Ph.D.
President & CEO, Casa Colina, Inc.

❧ Katherine and Jay Wolf ❧

Katherine and Jay Wolf were college sweethearts. After marrying at the age of 22, these Southerners moved to California. The young couple lived an idyllic life by the beach in Malibu. He studied law at Pepperdine; she began modeling and acting. They had a baby boy.

On April 21, 2008, the unthinkable happened. While their son napped peacefully in his crib, Katherine collapsed on the kitchen floor while making lunch. Jay arrived home and found his young wife in distress. He called 911. She was rushed to UCLA Medical Center where doctors discovered she had massive bleeding in her brain caused by a congenital brain defect – an arteriovenous malformation (AVM).

Her doctors performed 16 hours of intricate brain surgery to save her life. They removed 60% of her cerebellum. Thankfully, Katherine's cognition and mental faculties were still intact. Yet her motor control was completely gone and the right side of her face was paralyzed.

She spent 40 days in intensive care at UCLA, then another three months in its neuro-acute rehab unit before she was transferred to Casa Colina's Transitional Living (TLC) for its short-term residential rehabilitation program. Jay moved into one of the Casa Colina homes adjacent to the 20-acre medical and rehabilitation campus with their young son, so they could be there to support her. On November 10, 2008, she moved into the Casa Colina home with her family and received her therapy through TLC's day treatment program.

Dr. Yong Lee, board-certified psychiatrist, oversaw her medical care. She spent up to six hours a day in individual and group therapy working with an occupational therapist, physical therapist, neuropsychologist, and speech language pathologist to re-learn the skills that once came so easily to her.

"James was eating baby food when I was trying to swallow baby food. James was learning to walk when I was re-learning to walk. James was learning to talk when I was re-learning how to talk. It was crazy!" Katherine stated.

After more than a year at Casa Colina, the family was ready to leave its campus and found a home in Los Angeles. Jay is now an attorney and Katherine has had additional facial surgeries to restore her ability to smile. Their entertaining son James, now four, gives her ample opportunity to work on developing her grin. Each day, her smile grows wider and brighter.

❧ Captain Mark Kelly ❧

Mark Kelly is an American astronaut, retired US Navy Captain, best selling-author, prostate cancer survivor, and an experienced naval aviator who flew combat missions during the Gulf War. The winner of many awards, including the Legion of Merit, two Defense Superior Service Medals and two Distinguished Flying Crosses, Kelly was selected as an astronaut in 1996. He flew his first of four missions in 2001 aboard Space Shuttle Endeavour, the same space shuttle that he commanded on its final flight in May 2011. He has also commanded Space Shuttle Discovery and is one of only two individuals who have visited the International Space Station on four different occasions.

Already a celebrated American, Kelly became the center of international attention after the January 2011 assassination attempt on his wife, former US Congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords. In their best-selling memoir, Gabby, the couple shares their story of hope and resilience with the world. The inspirational memoir has topped multiple best-seller lists, including the New York Times, the Wall Street Journal, USA Today, and Amazon. Kelly and Giffords have captivated the nation with their story, appearing in an exclusive Diane Sawyer interview, and on "Nightline" and "The Daily Show," among others, and have appeared on the covers of People and USA Today. Named one of the Esquire's 2011 "Americans of the Year," Kelly was also featured on the cover of and profiled in the magazine.

Kelly's identical twin brother, Scott, is also an astronaut who served as commander of both the Space Shuttle and the International Space Station. They share the distinction of being the only siblings who have traveled in space.

With 6,000 flight hours in more than 50 different aircraft, 375 aircraft carrier landings, 39 combat missions and more than 50 days in space, Astronaut Mark Kelly is one of our country's most experienced pilots.

A sought-after keynote speaker, Mark Kelly is an American hero who inspires others to be their best while remaining true to their core values. He exemplifies leadership, the importance of teamwork, and courage under pressure.

Bonnie Hunt

Bonnie Hunt is a versatile and accomplished writer, director, producer and an Emmy, Golden Globe and SAG Award nominated actress, earning critical acclaim in film, television and theater.

Growing up in one of Chicago's blue-collar neighborhoods, Hunt pursued an acting career with the famous Second City improvisational theater while continuing to work as an Oncology nurse at Northwestern Memorial Hospital. She soon became familiar to audiences with her unforgettable cameos in such films as Rain Man, where she played the toothpick-dropping waitress, and in Dave as the White House tour guide. Her improvised line, "We're walking, we're walking..." quickly became famous as people embraced Hunt's unique accessible brand of humor.

Hunt's television accomplishments are considerable and innovative. Bonnie made television history when she became the first person to write, produce and star in a prime time series. Bonnie encouraged incorporating improvisation into her prime time series and this ambitious vision soon became a popular trend. But she didn't stop there. Hunt produced her show using five cameras instead of four, integrated overlapping dialogue and elected not to use the then standard laugh track. Today many of Hunt's techniques are used on prime time and cable television.

She went on to create three critically acclaimed series – writing, producing, directing and starring in The Building on CBS and Life with Bonnie for ABC, where she earned Emmy and Golden Globe nominations.

Continuing to build an impressive film resume, Hunt received rave reviews for her roles including Tom Cruises' scrutinizing sister-in-law in Jerry Maguire, Tom Hanks' wife in The Green Mile, Robin Williams' love interest in Jumanji, Random Hearts with Harrison Ford, Norman Jewison's Only You, Cheaper By The Dozen and Cheaper By The Dozen 2 with Steve Martin, and the family hits, Beethoven and Beethoven's 2nd. For MGM Bonnie wrote, directed and acted in the timeless, highly praised feature film, Return To Me. Her long association with Disney/Pixar has included starring roles in the animated hits A Bug's Life, Monsters Inc., and most recently, Hunt not only starred but received a writing credit in the Pixar classic Cars.

Bonnie has also been seen every weekday on her own nationally syndicated talk show, The Bonnie Hunt Show.

Bonnie is dedicated to giving back. Her commitment in raising funds to sponsor medical research is remarkable. The funds raised have gone to many foundations close to her own heart, including the Northwestern Brain Tumor Institute, The Make A Wish Foundation, The Christopher and Dana Reeve Foundation, American Veterans, The Arthritis Foundation, ALS, and The Robert H. Lurie Comprehensive Cancer Center.

Dear Friends,

It is an honor to join you in celebrating another "Tribute to Courage" banquet with Casa Colina Centers for Rehabilitation.

Through the years Casa Colina has earned a reputation as a compassionate caregiver to thousands of patients in need of rehabilitative care. This reputation developed from years of intensive clinical research and education in this highly specialized area of healthcare. As a legislator representing the city of Pomona, it is gratifying to have a world-renowned rehabilitation center such as Casa Colina located in my district.

On this evening of tributes we recognize the individuals who inspire the important work of Casa Colina. Their personal triumphs over the sometimes tragic consequences of serious brain injury remind us of the opportunity we have to overcome the adversity that comes with these injuries. It is my privilege to honor Commander Mark Kelly and Katherine and Jay Wolf and pay tribute to their courage for sharing their stories. May their resilience encourage continued support of Casa Colina.

Best wishes for a successful "Tribute to Courage" event.

Respectfully,

Gloria Negrete McLeod

Dear Dr. Loverso,

I would like to take this opportunity to express my heartfelt support to Casa Colina's 'Tribute to Courage' Gala that will take place on February 25, 2011.

I am honored to recognize Casa Colina for its marshaled medical leadership, therapeutic expertise, support staff and innovative post-acute systems to unlock opportunities that maximize recovery for people with disabling conditions. Many lives have truly been touched and changed because of the dedicated service that the employees of Casa Colina provide to each patient. I know that your 'Tribute to Courage' Gala will touch many hearts from the success stories that will be shared. I know that everyone person who comes in for rehabilitation is very grateful for all that you do.

On this special occasion, please accept my sincere appreciation for the service Casa Colina provides to their patients and their families. I wish Casa Colina the very best in all of your future endeavors!

A place to discover what is possible.

For most people, recovery from the minor accidents and sicknesses of everyday life is something we can manage on our own with only a trip to the doctor, an aspirin, or just a good night's rest.

But there are incidents, accidents and diseases that we don't spring back from easily. They range from the tennis elbow that doesn't get better, to work-related back pain that's so bad you stay home from work for weeks on end, to a brain injury that leaves you without the ability to speak or swallow, or to a spinal cord injury that leaves you without the ability to walk. Rehabilitation provides care and service to individuals with any of the above.

For some, rehabilitation is a visit to a physical therapist to help you bend that tennis elbow. For others, rehabilitation is a program of several weeks with a therapy team to build strength back into your body and to learn how to manage your back pain while going back to work and taking care of family responsibilities. And for others, rehabilitation may be the gradual process of relearning

how to swallow or learning new skills for getting around – such as using a wheelchair – to substitute for skills that are no longer possible.

Rehabilitation is a process that provides medical and rehabilitative care and teaches people how to make the most of a life that may have recently changed due to an accident, injury or disease. It addresses the individual physically, mentally and socially. It helps people find new ways to accomplish the basic activities of daily living such as moving from room to room, dressing, communicating with others, driving a car and fixing a meal. It can help prepare an individual for moving on in life after an injury or disease, to go back to a job or school, and to take care of everyday needs. Mastery of these types of skills allows individuals to move back into the normal stream of life with their families and at the workplace, and in society as a whole.

In short, effective rehabilitation can and should enhance the quality of life for those who choose to use the many services available at a comprehensive rehabilitation facility.
