GREETINGS

Dear Friends, Partners, and Supporters,

Welcome to a truly historic evening. Tonight, we gather not just to celebrate an annual tradition, but to honor a nine-decade journey of miracles rooted in Courage, Healing, and Innovation. Ninety years ago, Frances Eleanor “Mother” Smith—herself a survivor of polio—established a small treatment center in Chino to help children facing the very same disease and other disabling conditions. What began as a “house on the hill” during the Great Depression was fueled by a singular, powerful belief: that every individual deserves the opportunity to reclaim their dignity and independence, regardless of the challenges before them.

Now, in 2026, that mission has evolved into a nationally renowned continuum of care. We have spent nearly a century redefining the possibilities of recovery for those with traumatic brain injuries, spinal cord injuries, stroke, and other life-altering impairments. Today, we are growing faster than ever to meet the needs of our community. From the upcoming opening of our state-of-the-art outpatient center in Monrovia to the planned expansion of our Pomona campus into newly acquired properties across the street, Casa Colina is physically and clinically paving the way for the next century of care.

Our progress is fueled by our commitment to Translational Research. At the Casa Colina Research Institute, we are actively bridging the gap between scientific discovery and direct patient benefit. By moving “from bench to bedside,” we ensure that the latest breakthroughs in robotics and neurostimulation are not just concepts in a lab, but real-world treatments that change the lives of our patients every single day.

The heartbeat of Casa Colina has always been its people. Your presence tonight ensures that this high level of specialized care remains accessible to everyone. Proceeds from this evening’s gala directly support our Free and Subsidized Care Program. Your generosity allows a survivor of a life-altering injury or disease to receive the best possible care and rediscover the joy of an active life.

As we honor this 90-year milestone, we are reminded that our legacy is not just found in the buildings we inhabit, but in the thousands of lives reclaimed and the families made whole within our care. We stand today at the threshold of a new century—our path to the future will be built on the same resolute courage that guided Mother Smith ninety years ago. Your partnership ensures that this mission continues to thrive, transforming the impossible into the achievable for decades to come.

Thank you for being part of our story. Here’s to another 90 years of miracles.

HOST
LEEZA GIBBONS

Emmy Award winner & NYT Best-selling author,

Leeza Gibbons has taken her decades of dominance in the fields of on-camera hosting and reporting along with her passion for health advocacy to craft a unique position as a leading voice for personal growth and empowerment, and caregiving. Using her experiences hosting, producing and reporting for shows such as Entertainment Tonight, The PBS show My Generation and her own talk show, LEEZA, Gibbons became an instrumental advocate for healthcare, wellness and empowerment, always encouraging audiences to show up for their lives and participate in change. That is exactly what Leeza did when she created the non-profit Leeza’s Care Connection where they offer free services to help families cope when facing a chronic illness or disease through strategies, programs and support.

Family is at the core of many of Leeza’s pursuits and it was her mother’s struggle with Alzheimer’s disease that inspired many of Leeza’s actions. Leeza’s support communities are the fulfillment of a promise that Leeza made to her mom when she got Alzheimer’s disease. Her mother asked her to simply, “tell the story and make it count” and for over 25 years, she has been doing just that. Her focus on helping others “call on their courage” and “summon their strength” during a health challenge is a common theme to her life and work. Recently, in partnership with Public Health Americorps, Leeza has launched an innovative program to address compassion fatigue and other mental health challenges that come with caring, called HUGS, Helping U Grow Strong. It’s a peer-to-peer mentoring program she created to empower care partners to “hold onto themselves even while letting go of someone they love”.

Leeza is currently seen on-camera as co-host of The Rose Parade Her books, including NY Times Bestseller, Take 2: Your Guide to Happy Endings and New Beginnings; and Fierce Optimism: 7 Secrets for Playing Nice and Winning Big and Take Your Oxygen First highlight Leeza’s ability to provide practical inspiration and encouragement to anyone who believes they can create a successful life of happiness and purpose without selling out or giving in. Leeza creates programs and services to help others reclaim their health and rewrite their stories.

Leeza is the epitome of graceful aging offering recognizably, relatability and reputation to uplift and empower audiences and viewers to get more out of life and business. This wife, mother and businesswoman has numerous recognitions for her achievements, including a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame for her TV work, The Congressional Horizon Award for her service work and the ICON Award for her work Direct Response Marketing. She was appointed by Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger to serve as a patient advocate on the board of the California Institute for Regenerative Medicine and has an impressive service record of support for everything from The Red Cross to AARP!

Every day, patients walk the campus pathways on their journey to recovery—taking steps that are both physical and deeply personal. Along these paths, the presence of community support makes a powerful difference.

As part of Casa Colina's 90th Anniversary celebration, patients, families, donors, and community partners are invited to become a permanent part of that journey through the purchase of a commemorative brick.

— THANK YOU —

On behalf of the Casa Colina Board of Directors, President and CEO Kelly M. Linden, and the Casa Colina Foundation, thank you for being a vital part of this year's Tribute to Courage.

Your presence and contributions tonight do more than support an event; they provide the gift of specialized, affordable care to those who need it most.

We take great pride in our stewardship of your gifts, ensuring they directly support the rehabilitation and recovery of our patients. We are sincerely grateful for your commitment to our community.
